Description

It would be nice is one could "TAG" wiki content or use some other mechanism where a "publish to documentation" option would allow selected the applicable content and posibility organize, allowing for using the Wiki as a living document and providing a mechanism to publish a specific version of the Wiki content as official document version. The end result would be a pdf with applicable table of contents, glossary, etc based on a template maybe automatically published to the "Documents" area.

Thoughts?
