Description
Moving issues with sub issues between projects fails SILENTLY when a sub issue is using a tracker that is NOT present in the target project.
When this fails there is no error message or error in log but the issue remains in the old project.
(This can be solved by changing sub issue to a tracker that is present in the target project or adding the tracker to the sub project.)
When moving issues with sub issues Redmine should:
a) change all sub issues to parent issue tracker? Or ask what to do with each sub issue?
b) fail with some message, not silently...
