Thanks for the patch but it seems the example is wrong:

```
|_ A |_ B |_ C |_ D |
| 1 | 2 |/2 span 2 |
```

renders as:

_ A	_ B	_ C	_ D
1	2	/2 span 2

Table headers need a dot after the underscore. The slash is used for rowspan, and the backslash for colspan and they need a dot too. The example should be something like:

```
|_. A |_. B |_. C |_. D |
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
|/2. rowspan | 2 |\2. colspan |
```

```
|   | 2 | 3 | 4 |
```

which renders as:

A	B	C	D
1	2	3	4
rowspan	2	colspan
	2	3	4

My apologies. The hand-coded table next to the example fooled me into thinking the example worked and I forgot to actually run it through Textile.

I've attached a new patch file that adds rowspan and has been tested in Redmine's Textile engine.
