Description

Instead of a flat file list, here is how the changes list could be displayed on the changeset view:

The screenshot shows a Redmine revision view for revision 1798. At the top, it says "Revision 1798" with navigation buttons for "Previous", "Next", and "OK". Below that, it shows the commit message: "jplang, 2008-09-11 19:03" and "Adds support for free ticket filtering and custom queries on Calendar. ProjectsController#calendar moved to IssuesController." The "Files" section shows a tree structure of files with their change status (added, modified, or deleted). The tree structure is as follows:

- trunk
  - app
    - models
      - query.rb (diff)
    - controllers
      - projects_controller.rb (diff)
      - issues_controller.rb (diff)
    - views
      - projects
        - show.rhtml (diff)
        - calendar.rhtml
      - issues
        - _sidebar.rhtml (diff)
        - gantt.rhtml (diff)
        - calendar.rhtml
    - public
      - stylesheets
        - application.css (diff)
    - lib
      - redmine.rb (diff)
    - test
      - functional
        - issues_controller_test.rb (diff)
        - projects_controller_test.rb (diff)

Is it undesirable for anyone ? Feedback is welcome.
