Description
After Model plugin creation I tried to create a new instance of rplugin model with the following error in Rails Console:
<pre>ActiveRecord::DangerousAttributeError: errors is defined by Active Record. Check to make sure that you don't have an attribute or method with the same name.</pre>
I chaged all most three times the Plugin and Model name without luck, I am following the Redmine Plugin Development guide step by step but something is wrong.

Finally I can fix my issue but I don't know the root cause. I have been using very particular model names in order to avoid conflicts.

Solution: Add this line in the Gemfile.

gem 'safe_attributes'

#2 - 2015-03-05 15:43 - Go MAEDA

- Priority changed from Urgent to Normal

I could not reproduce.

Could you show commands you typed to generate a model?

#3 - 2015-03-05 16:29 - Ricardo Gutiérrez

Shell commands:

rails generate redmine_plugin Odsfs rails g redmine_plugin_model odsfs odsf lines:integer bad_lines:integer errors:text rake redmine:plugins:migrate

#4 - 2015-03-06 04:26 - Go MAEDA

- Status changed from New to Needs feedback

I could not still produce. A table was successfully created.

$ bundle exec rake redmine:plugins:migrate
Migrating foo (Foo plugin)...
Migrating odsfs (Odsfs plugin)...
== 1 CreateOdsfs: migrating =====
-- create_table(:odsfs)
   -> 0.0010s
== 1 CreateOdsfs: migrated (0.0011s) =====
```

Environment:
