Description
1. Target version select is empty when you add the issue's target version filter To reproduce: - Open spent time tab from a project - Add the Issue's target version filter - Observe that the dropdown is empty. If you apply the query, a validation message will appear and the dropdown gets populated. 2. Filtering time entries after multiple target version filters only after the first version. To reproduce: - performe de above steps and apply the query - expand the Target version select to multiselect - select two versions that have issues with time entries. - apply the query - observe that only the time entries related to the issues from first version are returned. Attached are two patches that fix these 2 issues.

Thank you for finding the problem. But I think that the root cause of the problem is that `TimeEntryQuery#project` returns nil instead of the current project. Because of this, subproject dropdown also is not working.

Indeed, you're right. Here is a patch that fixes this. It can be applied before or after my previous patches.

attachment:fix_filter_values_for_fixed_version_id.patch remains a valid patch because that if is not required, `fixed_version_values` already checks if the project is defined or not.

- File add_subproject_filter_test_for_time_entries.patch added

Added a test also for subproject filter values. It should be applied after my previous patches.

Considering that these issues are quite important, maybe is a good idea to release soon the version:3.4.3 version (which has other important fixes).

Jean-Philippe Lang, in this ticket there are 2 more patches that should be committed in my opinion:

1. attachment:fix_filter_values_for_fixed_version_id.patch which removes an unnecessary if and adds a test for the first problem reported by me. If you consider that if necessary, we could commit at least the test.
2. attachment:fix_filter_after_multiple_version_ids.patch which fixes the second problem reported by me in this ticket.

#11 - 2017-10-15 13:56 - Jean-Philippe Lang

Sorry, both patches are also committed, thanks.
