Description

Hi there,
I am investigating a long overdue issue in my setup and at the moment, I think it is a defect in Redmine.

I do have a fairly large repo (though not huge) with 1,500 commits.

About a year ago, the processing commit messages stopped working and new commits stopped appearing in my Redmine (the code is up to date though).

When issuing git log --all --pretty=format:"%cd %cn %s" in the repository (the bare used by Redmine) I do have all the last commits, but they are missing in Redmine.

The repo has 1587 commits, but only 1276 (give or take 1) are known to Redmine.

Environment

Environment:
  Redmine version              3.4.2.stable
  Ruby version                 2.3.4-p301 (2017-03-30) [x86_64-linux-gnu]
  Rails version                4.2.8
  Environment                  production
  Database adapter             Mysql2
SCM:
  Filesystem
Redmine plugins:
  redmine_github_hook          2.2.0

Note: This is not new to 3.4.2, I upgraded today to make sure, but I was on 3.2.6 before that and it was the same.

It is to note that the output of git log --no-color --encoding=UTF-8 --raw --date=iso --pretty=fuller --parents --no-renames --reverse (as guessed from git_adapter.rb) is consistent with the issue -it does not contain all commits).

I cannot guess everything that git_adapter.rb does, but it seems that adding --all to git log would fix the issue (it does in the command line at least)

Try #23262#note-11.

Hi Toshi,

The rails command did not work but I nulled the field in the DB and it did the trick, thank you very much!

Sorry, I did not note you need to change 18 of "Repsotiry.find(18).clear_extra_info_of_changesets" to your repository id.

Anyway, thank you for your feedback.
