Description

Here is my conf: Postgresql 8.3.7-1; Ruby 1.8.7; Rails 2.3.2; Redmine 0.8.3

The problem is when you export Wiki page to HTML all local anchor link are converted to html links. For example (space between [and] puts for notextile):

Wiki

[[Wiki_page_name#some_anchor|link_text]]

HTML

```
link_text

This conversion makes link unreachable.

After changing :wiki_links => :local on :wiki_links => :anchor in /app/views/wiki/export.rhtml anchors link starts convert to

link_text

After changing

    format_wiki_link = Proc.new {|project, title, anchor| "##{title}" }

to

```
    format_wiki_link = Proc.new {|project, title, anchor| "##{anchor}" }

in /app/helpers/application_helper.rb converstion works fine.

I'm not sure to understand your problem.
If you're exporting a single wiki page, links to other pages needs to point to another HTML file. Of course, if this page was not exported, the link is unreachable.

Maybe you could attach a full example (raw text, HTML export and expected HTML export).

- File 2_export.html added

- File 3_expected_export.html added

My problem is converting local links which points to local anchors in the same HTML file.
