I'm adding a patch for testing purposes, I still need to:

1. Add tests
2. Add an icon to JS toolbar
3. Allow clicking task item checkboxes directly.
4. Try to add this to Textile

From my point of view, the feature is useful enough only with the first 2 items and we can improve later with 3 and 4. What do you think?

Regarding the tech side, I tried to implement it using only the tasklist extension provided by the CommonMark, but it requires to whitelist in the sanitize the following tags: ul, li, input type="checkbox". Also, using this extensions it will make harder to port this feature to textile.

- Target version set to 5.0.0

I think we should deliver this along with the new CommonMark formatter. Any feedback is appreciated.

Really nice feature. This should be delivered in Redmine 5.0.0.

I agree. I think it is still useful even without 2.

Feature added in r21383. You can now add task list items using the common_mark format * [] Task title or by clicking the "Task list" icon bt_tl.png from the toolbar.

For now, to check the items, you need to use the Edit feature, we will try to allow this by clicking on the checkbox in the near future.

Is there any news on this or a issue to track clickable checkboxes?

Thanks for implementing this anyway!

Any news about this feature? This would really benefit our workflow where we have checklists in notes depending on the current state of the issue.

#13 - 2023-09-29 10:18 - Go MAEDA

Since the feature was already delivered as a part of Redmine 5.0.0 and this issue was closed, please don't add comments anymore.

Please open a new issue if you have any requests about the feature.
