Description

Recently I have prepared in my Redmine installation some Wiki page which should be used as template by other users. The page is available in public project where users can only view Wiki. I'd like to give users the possibility to view Wiki page source, co they can copy it to their projects Wiki.

Ability to view the source of wiki page can also be used to learn the markup from existing pages or reuse it without necessity to give editing permission.

The reason for this feature is something similar to #1330, but the solution is different.
