Description

Without the plugin installed, hitting Enter while on the edit/update page will click the Submit button (unless in a text control that allows returns, of course). With the plugin installed, hitting Enter causes the plugin's Add button to be clicked.

Could we change the action for the button from "submit" to "button"? My quick tests in Firefox via Firebug suggest that this change had no ill effects and also allows Enter to Submit the issue form without triggering the Add.

Sorry but this tracker is for Redmine core issues only, you should contact the Mylyn plugin author.

Okay. I did look for the plugin author, but this plugin started as #3816 in this very tracker, and has no other home, so I made the assumption that it had blurred the line between plugin and core. Also, Mylyn is not the plugin I'm referring to.
