Description

The branch dropdown (for choosing a branch other than 'master') seems to be broken as of the latest version of trunk (pulled today, revision 8670). The problem is that the resulting link is undefined:

For instance, when selecting the "ericb" branch, you get a 404 error on:

https://somesite.org/redmine/projects/tess-kernel/repository/revisions//show?rev=ericb

Notice that (1) the "//" in the middle seems to really confuse the router. Also, (2) I've tried other variants suggested by the latest routes.rb, such as repository/revisions/ericb or other variants. They come up with an "entry not found in the repository" error. This problem seems to have happened very recently (last couple of days?) and is probably part of the multiple-SCM rewrite.

My info is as follows:

Revision 8678 - 2012-01-20 20:46 - Jean-Philippe Lang

Fixed: Git: Mercurial: Branch dropdown broken on repositories page (#10026).

Revision 8683 - 2012-01-21 06:16 - Toshi MARUYAMA

route: scm: add revision requirements for git/mercurial branches (#10026) hgsubversion mirror (https://bitbucket.org/redmine/redmine-all) has "../sandbox/rails-2.3" and "../sandbox/rails-2.2" named branches.

"View revisions" link of "../sandbox/rails-2.3" generates
"repository/revisions/..%2Fsandbox%2Frails-2.3/changes".
But, passenger returns "Not Found".
