Description

If you are providing the video install guide then it will be much useful for small companies. For example; any person can install Redmine by their self once they will see the video. I mean to say that, Installation from scratch to till log the issue.

I can understand that is bit complex but once it will done, it will be really great.

Awesome idea, but no one has the time / skills to do this for now. Plus it needs to be maintained on the long run (see what happens to railscasts now...). So I don't think there's any point keeping this issue open, but if someone has the time to do this don't hesitate to re-open and submit a proposal.
