Description

I miss this number when reporting another ticket.

maybe the best place to put this info is close to Redmine link in the footer note.

eg.

0.7.1 has already been released, yet you've targeted this for 0.7.1

#2 - 2008-05-21 11:54 - Thomas Lecavelier

- Target version changed from 0.7.1 to 0.7.2

Concerning this issue, this could be a security concern: if a major security issue is discovered, with an existing exploit, it would (very dimly) protect redmine instances without the security patch.

#3 - 2008-05-21 11:54 - Anonymous

- Target version changed from 0.7.2 to 0.7.1

It was removed due to feature #794. As noted, the version number can still be viewed in Administration -> Info

#4 - 2008-05-21 11:56 - Thomas Lecavelier

- Target version deleted (0.7.1)

Remove target version, since it's a feature-request. (note the interesting update collision between my last note and Nick's one).

#5 - 2008-05-21 12:04 - Anonymous

- Target version set to 0.7.2

Hrmm... we appeared to edit the issue at the same time - changing target version back to 0.7.2

#6 - 2008-05-21 12:05 - Anonymous

- Target version deleted (0.7.2)

Arrh! It's happened again!

Changed back to nothing!

uhh... sorry.. I really missed the Administration > Info, the security is a really good reason to keep version out of the front page

#8 - 2009-03-07 21:07 - Jean-Philippe Lang

- Resolution set to Wont fix

I don't see "Administration" page. Maybe it's because I don't have enough permissions. So if I want to report a Redmine issue, how can I get our redmine version #? except for asking our admin, of course.
