Description

Currently, the issue author filter is limited to redmine.org project members.
I think it would be a good idea to either

- add credible contributors like Jérôme BATAILLE or "Jan from www.plan.io" (or others) to the filter list OR
- let redmine.org project members enter a regex in the author filter.

That way, queries like this would be possible:
Show open patches authored by "Jérôme BATAILLE" OR "Jan from www.plan.io"

This is already, though implicitly, possible using manual URL-mangling of the author id:

- All open patches authored by Jan from Planio www.plan.io on Redmine.org
- All open patches authored by Jérôme BATAILLE on Redmine.org

It reminds me a bit on issue #4501 (which was in fact speaking about the watcher filter).

Just my two cents...

This is default Redmine behavior AFAIK. Which brings me to the question, is this issue strictly about redmine.org (the category also suggests this)?
If yes, then the category should be changed (to something like issues) because it should be implemented in Redmine core first before it can be enabled on redmine.org.
If no, well, then the category should be changed also. Though that raises the question why you have chosen to select Website as category in the first place.

Can you shed some light on this, please?
