

Redmine - Defect #1427

Search selection checkboxes should reflect enabled modules

2008-06-11 23:51 - James Turnbull

Status:	Closed	Start date:	2008-06-11

Category:	Search engine	Estimated time:	0.00 hour
Target version:		Affected version:	0.7.1
Resolution:	No feedback
Description
When searching only the modules that are enabled for a project should be ticked. Either this or you should be able to customise which search boxes are ticked by default.

Actually, you don't see these checkboxes when you search inside a project.

- <http://www.redmine.org/search/index/redmine> doesn't show the 'Documents' checkbox since this module is disabled on this project
- <http://www.redmine.org/search> shows the 'Documents' checkbox (global search)

2 solutions for the global search:

- check if at least one project has the module to display the checkbox
- let the administrator choose what can be searched in the global search (and maybe which boxes are checked by default)

What do you think ?

"let the administrator choose what can be searched in the global search (and maybe which boxes are checked by default)"

That looks like the best option to me - selection and checked by default. Though wondering if that potentially could cause issues - no perhaps not if everything is checked by default.
