Your couple ruby/mysql could be a little bit old. Could you provide a copy of your log/production.log files please? (please, remove or hide IP indications if your instance is exposed to the internet).

Thank you.

BTW: next time, before opening a defect, please use the forum/help or the irc to be sure you hit a defect, in order to keep the trackers as light as possible. Thank you.

For reference, I used <http://alandaveline.com/blog/2008/05/16/redmine-on-dreamhost-with-passenger/> to install. I've also taken the liberty of disguising the email addresses, domain name, names and user ids (hopefully all...).

Sorry, it's a MySQL 5 database. I can't recall where I got 4.1. That would be ANCIENT.

Running 0.8.0 r2761. I'm also experiencing problems with My Page widgets but only when trying to re-add items in the list. Steps to reproduce:

1. Press personalize this page
2. Add a widget
3. Delete the widget by pressing X
4. Widget that was deleted cannot be added back to the page

This behaviour is resolved by either pressing 'Cancel' or refreshing the page

I've opened a new issue for this undesired behaviour. See #4379.

This does not affect the current source:/trunk (anymore). I even doubt if it has affected source:/branches/0.8-stable ever.

This undesired behaviour is (still) replicatable on both source:/trunk and source:/branches/0.8-stable. I've pushed it to #4379 to be able to close this old (and obsoleted) defect.
