FYI this can be accomplished somewhat cleanly by creating macros in a plugin. This is the quick hack which I used, saved as `plugins/redmine_wiki_checkboxes/init.rb`:

require 'redmine'

Redmine::Plugin.register :redmine_wiki_checkboxes do name 'Redmine Wiki Checkboxes plugin' author 'Stephane Lavergne'
  description 'Adds x, z and o formatting macros'
  version '0.0.2'
  url 'https://github.com/vphantom'
  author_url 'https://github.com/vphantom'
  requires_redmine :version_or_higher => '3.4.0'
end

Redmine::WikiFormatting::Macros.register do
  desc "Unchecked checkbox"
  macro :o do |obj, args|
    '☐'.html_safe
```

Redmine::WikiFormatting::Macros.register do
  desc "Checked checkbox"
  macro :x do |obj, args|
    '☑'.html_safe
```

Redmine::WikiFormatting::Macros.register do
  desc "Crossed checkbox"
  macro :z do |obj, args|
    '&#x2612;'.html_safe

They cannot be used as list bullets per se, but it still opens decent possibilities.

The CommonMark formatter that is available in Redmine 5.0.0 (#32424) allows adding task list items, please see #35742 for more details.

In #20698 we will track support for Textile.

Also, having a crossed checkbox is not usual so I think we should not support this feature.
