Description
The helper added to group filters of ":tree" and ":relation" type uses ":label_related_issues" as group label. <pre>module QueriesHelper include ApplicationHelper def filters_options_for_select(query) ungrouped = [] grouped = {} query.available_filters.map do field, field_options if [:tree, :relation].include?(field_options[:type]) group = :label_related_issues elsif field =~ /^(.+)\./ # association filters end end end end</pre>
This is not OK as the helper is for all queries, not only for Issue queries. In my case I have a project query and group title "Related issues" does not match. I would like to propose creating new, more generic label e.g. "label_related: Related". field_options[:type] is not translated word. It is symbol defined at source:tags/3.2.1/app/models/query.rb#L212 .

Does it mean you use plugin which implement project query?

I have past in code that shows you where the :label_related_issues translation is used, I'm not talking about field_options[:type].

Yes, I have a plugin that implements project queries and in such case group called "Related Issues" is dummy. It should be more generic.
