Description

Currently it is only possible to include the activities of all subprojects or no subprojects. It would be useful to allow users to choose which subprojects they want to include on the activity page and which not.

This would be quite useful for some projects like forge.typo3.org which have a huge count of subprojects (for example: typo3 version 4 - activity). There is a pulldown menu for all of the subprojects.

If you select the project activity list it will be a quite long output with much information you probably don't want, causing much database output. :-)
