This fixes a report query filter bug where

assigned_to="me"

Could you tell more about this bug ?

Maybe I should have better documented the bug before submitting the fix. If I set a filter like assigned_to="me", it often (but not always) wouldn't work because executed_by was nil, apparently because User.current.logged? was returning false. This patch makes it work by assuming that if User.current is not nil, User.current is logged in and should be treated as "me".

What do you when ? You get an error or the filter is not taken into account ?

by assuming that if User.current is not nil

In fact, User.current is never nil.

The filter is incorrect (if I remember right, the SQL says assigned_to="") and no results are returned.

In fact, User.current is never nil.

That's the idea. Possibly I'm missing something, but User.current.logged? looked like an unnecessary step that was returning the wrong results, so I circumvented executed_by with User.current.

I think I found the bug.
But I applied a different fix (in r979) because I don't want that the "me" value appears when the user is not logged (since the app don't know who he is).
