Ok, i did some more research.

I found this All Issues shows "visibility is not included in the list".

Written in the single comment there was a hint to set database role of the user to db_owner .

This seems to solve my problem, i no longer get the error message.

What should be done:

I used this SQL to create the database schmea (found in installation wiki on this page). This should be updated.

USE [master]
GO

-- Very basic DB creation
CREATE DATABASE [REDMINE]
GO

-- Creation of a login with SQL Server login/password authentication and no password expiration policy
CREATE LOGIN [REDMINE] WITH PASSWORD=N'redminepassword', DEFAULT_DATABASE=[REDMINE], CHECK_EXPIRATION=OFF, CHECK_POLICY=OFF
GO

-- User creation using previously created login authentication
USE [REDMINE]
GO
CREATE USER [REDMINE] FOR LOGIN [REDMINE]

-- User permissions set via roles
EXEC sp_addrolemember N'db_datareader', N'REDMINE'
GO
EXEC sp_addrolemember N'db_datawriter', N'REDMINE'

Maybe a tool the chekcs database right would be helpfull.

Whats about a subpage at Admin-section of Redmine called "Check database". Here you could put a button which starts some SQL-calls to determine if the database is set to a privilege level to fullfill the request of redmine?

cheers
