Description Sometimes, a user could make the mistake of reporting a bug but submitting it as a feature, and would have to delete the issue and rewrite a new one just to correct that one mistake. Users should be given the option to select between Bug, Feature, and Support (or whatever the issues types are set to) even after they've initially submitted their issue.

If you are having the correct permissions you can "move" issues to the current project but selecting another tracker.

Try a search on moving issues between trackers. Sure you'll find some pointers...

I agree that this isn't documented (well). I'll remember this thing when starting a wiki-session :-)

HTH...
