I should note this happens in the preview panel

#2 - 2018-01-17 02:29 - Mizuki ISHIKAWA

It is not preferable that the display at preview is different from the actual display.
I think adding this code will solve this problem.

I confirmed the problem and the patch submitted in #27862#note-2 works fine for me. But I think we can use the existing selector "#preview fieldset" instead of adding "fieldset.preview", don't we?

#4 - 2018-01-17 05:29 - Mizuki ISHIKAWA

When using the selector "#preview fieldset", the style was not applied to the preview screen for editing existing notes.

Therefore, I prepared a new selector "fieldset.preview".

Thank you for the explanation, I confirmed what you wrote. I noticed that the preview area when editing an existing note doesn't have "DRAFT" background image. Your patch also fixes that.

Maybe you can put the two lines of CSS together as follows. Mizuki, could you review this?

Thank you for fixing the code I wrote.
I confirmed that the code works as expected. This makes it possible to equalize the layout of the preview panel.
