Description

In the markdown standard format, an empty line is required before and after a block in order to render the content properly.

1. List without an empty line (doesn't work) | md_syntax_1.png | -> | md_output_1.png |
2. List with an empty line (works ok) | md_syntax_2.png | -> | md_output_2.png |
3. Enabling option :lax_spacing for markdown formatting (more details about this option on github) allows also the first format:

We already rolled out this change on our instance because most of the times, we forget to let the empty line and we observe that it doesn't work after we save the changes.

The patch is attached.

- Target version set to Unplanned backlogs

This LGTM.

OT: Your patch reminded me btw that we might also want a simple test (like ApplicationHelperTest#test_footnotes) for markdown footnotes (in source:trunk/test/unit/lib/redmine/wiki_formatting/markdown_formatter_test.rb) as enabled per #16072. And while writing this, the questions of 'how many other textile syntax tests are there remaining lurking outside of source:/trunk/test/unit/lib/redmine/wiki_formatting/textile_formatter_test.rb and what do we want to do with them?' comes up... But that is certainly for another issue.
