Description

A cross-project activity view would be very helpful. Especially the repository acitivity/commits are not easy to follow in case one configures a project per software module and the product consists of a number of these modules. Basically any multi-project redmine install with users typically involved in more than one project would benefit, I reckon. This view should probably be located on the "My page," because the set of projects is different for users.

I hope this is not a duplicate. I did find a few cross-project features, but not an acitivity view.

This is a duplicate of #423 & #494 and the requested feature is already implemented in r1227 (which is included already in 0.7.x-releases IIRC).

Goto: Projects and see the "Overall activity"-link in the top-right...

Plz, re-open if im wrong...

True, actually. Thanks for the pointer!
