Remove the workaround for #12090

If the patch #30820 that drops "Blind carbon copy recipients (bcc)" setting is accepted, we can remove the workaround for #12090 that fixes the issue that email recipients are not logged when the setting is enabled, because emails will always be sent using To.

```diff
--- a/config/initializers/10-patches.rb
+++ b/config/initializers/10-patches.rb
@@ -122,24 +122,6 @@
     ActionMailer::Base.add_delivery_method :tmp_file, DeliveryMethods::TmpFile

     -# Changes how sent emails are logged
     -# Rails doesn't log cc and bcc which is misleading when using bcc only (#12090)
     -module ActionMailer
     -  class LogSubscriber < ActiveSupport::LogSubscriber
     -    def deliver(event)
     -      recipients = [:to, :cc, :bcc].inject("") do |s, header|
     -        r = Array.wrap(event.payload[header])
     -        if r.any?
     -          s << "n #{header}: #{r.join(', ')}"
     -          end
     -          s
     -          end
     -      info("nSent email: " + subject) + recipients + %1.fms + recipients + event.duration)
     -      debug(event.payload[:mail])
     -      end
     -    end
     -  end
     -end
     -
     module ActionController
     module MimeResponds
     class Collector
```

Related issues:
Blocked by Redmine - Patch # 30820: Drop setting "Blind carbon copy recipient... New