Target version:
Resolution:	No feedback	Affected version:	4.0.4
Description
The structure of html for logged and not logged in is different. can you make it the same?
1 Logged on users. Inside the "issue" block there are child blocks - attachments, issue_tree, relations http://prntscr.com/ofan0u
In the case of a non-logged one, these blocks are not parental, but neighbor blocks - http://prntscr.com/ofaqcd
I would like to get a single structure.
2 items without tag - http://prntscr.com/ofajwa http://prntscr.com/ofakyy

I did not find any difference in the structure of the HTML whether the user is logged in or not. It seems you are using a plugin to display a checklist. Could you check again without plugins?

Comparison: (left = logged in, right = anonymous access)
