Description There is permission to edit time logs,  But, what's missing is forbid to add time log for date in past .  There are many use-cases where employees log time on daily basis, but should not be able to log time retro-actively.  Even if they don't have edit timelog permission, they can still log time for days in past, which should be good to forbid.

Thanks for checking. We have the same problem In our use case. Users should log their time max 1-3 days back buttthey do it just to fiil the time. I'd like to restrict it. If they do not log the time properly, they should have a problem which can solve only someone with higher privilege.
