Description
Relates to #29488.
The displayed title of the linked issue has the same style as the normal text, what could lead to confusing information. A minimal fix would be to add the link color also to the title (bold or not bold).

I agree that we should have different styles.

Attached two screenshots:
1. Subject as link (as Robert proposed)

2. Highlight the entire text using the style from inline code:

I think formatting the subject as link is more consistent and fits better than the inline code style.
+1 for the link variant.

I prefer the first option (render subject as link). It is consistent with links to other objects such as message and user.

Here is a patch that includes the subject in the linked text, but I think that we should change the title as well because right now we show the entire subject and the title shows the subject truncated at 100 characters and the status. Maybe it is enough to show "label_status: status".
