Description
CSV exports of time entries report no longer contain issue subject and tracker name since Redmine 4.0.0.
Steps to reproduce:
<ol style="list-style-type: none"><li>1. Go to a project</li><li>2. Go to Spent time tab</li><li>3. Go to Report tab</li><li>4. Add Issue</li><li>5. Click on CSV export link</li><li>6. The exported CSV contains column Issue with only issue ID in the exported values. In previous versions (tested on Redmine 3.4.13) it contained values in the following format: <code>{obj.tracker} ##{obj.id}: #{obj.subject}</code>.</li></ol>
Tested on clean Docker image redmine:4.0.0 and Redmine 4.1.0.
It seems it was broken in #29042.

I added a test to cover for this regressions and a possible fix for the issue in my first patch.

I'm not sure if a change in a place that central will have negative side effects.

I checked the few places where format_object was used outside of HTML templates and helpers and ran all unit tests locally and it seemed fine to me. What do you think?

My second patch just contains a minor source code improvement: Redmine::Helpers::TimeReport currently never uses the issue argument (which doesn't seem to be set to any value in that controller anyways), so I removed it to prevent confusion.

Oh sorry I realized I included an unnecessary line in the unit test.... this is the updated patch

Thanks Kevin for writing the patch. I think it's safer to fix this in `timelog_helper.rb` as it was before #29042, please find attached a slightly modified patch. Test results here

Guys, I can see this issue in the latest version 4.1.0 as well. Has anyone else been able to replicate it?
