Description I cannot seem to find any way within Redmine to obtain a time logged report for all, or specified, users across all projects. We have a couple of people that work on multiple projects that are tracked by Redmine but which are not related to each other. It would be extremely useful to obtain a report by user, by date for a range of dates, of all time logged activity for any given user. It would also be useful to be able to generate a chronological report of all activity for each user, whether time was logged or not.

You might want to look at my Timesheet plugin for your first request. It's basically a interface to time logs cross-project.
