I can't reproduce this on the latest trunk version. Am I testing it correctly?

1. Login as admin
2. Setup OpenID url
3. Logout
4. Login as the OpenID url with "Remember Me"
5. Enter OpenID authentication at OpenID host
6. Logged into Redmine
7. Close browser, clearing session cookies
8. Start browser
9. Visit Redmine
10. Am still logged in from the "Remember Me"

My session resets each browser restart.
Here: rm.smix.name is clean redmine installation with a couple of projects.
(sorry I don't want search bots to index it)

I actually have the some problem (using myopenid.com). This has never worked for me.

#8 - 2010-10-22 19:26 - Peter Baumgartner

This is present in 1.0.2. edavis10 had this to say in #redmine,

> OpenID doesn't work with autologin because of how it comes back to Redmine. Autologin works with normal sessions.

"cant reproduce" resolution should be removed.

I can confirm this bug still exists in 2.1.4.stable and the quoted patch works. I've attached one that applies to 2.1.4.stable, since that is likely easier for you.

I tested this with Firefox 17.0.1 and IE9.

To reproduce, I followed Eric Davis route similarly:

1. Login using OpenID url and register user
2. Logout
3. Login with the OpenID url, selecting "Auto Login"
4. Enter OpenID authentication at OpenID host
5. Logged into Redmine
6. Close browser, clearing session cookies
7. Start browser
8. Visit Redmine Homepage (not /login)
9. Am no longer logged in (of course, with the patch, I am.)

Also, if it's relevant, I have auto logins setup to stay current for 7 days. (Although, I don't think that should matter.)
