Issue and given fix confirmed. Adding the given method to Issue fixes this by properly taking tracker permissions into account (i.e. :edit_issue permission needed for tracker Y to delete attachments attached to an issue with set tracker Y).

Indeed. It implements full CRUD-permissions for issue attachments. I think it would be nice to have it integrated into the core, however the provided patch as-is is pretty big and, sadly, is currently outdated and will likely break the existing test suite and comes without any test coverage for the new features itself.

I've had a quick look into the patch implementation though and it all seems properly implemented (albeit to obviously outdated checkouts). It shouldn't be all too hard to rebase it onto the current trunk. Updating the test suite for the patch and testing (for) and handling (of) any possible edge-cases will be most of the required work to get it ready for a decision on core integration.
