Description

This issue is currently based only on a inspection of the feature on redmine.org, but I believe it is persists on current Redmine versions and other SCM-backends than subversion too. Yet, this assumption should be checked...

Currently, the

- view for repo (changeset/revision) diffs provides diff content in descending alphabetical order; while the
- view for diff attachments provides diff content in ascending alphabetical order.

I believe it is better if both these views provide the diff content in the same order. IMHO the ascending alphabetical order would be preferred.
