Description

A user may only read/edit the projects he/she is a member of.

Using the account/show page however, any unprivileged user can read a list of all project names. All project details are kept confidential but project names may also be regarded as confidential data.

For better confidentiality, it would much better to display a restriced list of other users' projects or not to display them at all.

Or you could add under Role/permissions/members one or two checkboxes
- view project membership (all projects)
- view shared projects only

Fixed in rev 567.

Only public projects or private projects that the logged in user belongs to are now displayed.
