Description
In the interests of using Redmine for time tracking, it would be really useful to be able to display the time taken on each issue on the changelog and/or roadmap page, possibly also with a total given for each version.

Change app/views/projects/changelog.rhtml line 32:

<li><%= link_to_issue(issue) %>: <=h issue.subject >< if issue.spent_hours > 0 then > (<= l(:label_f_hour_plural, issue.spent_hours) %
| )<% end %></li>

Wrapped in code-tags, the modified line 22 (Redmine 0.8.0-RC1) looks like:

<li><%= link_to_issue(issue) %>: <%=h issue.subject %><%= if issue.spent_hours > 0 %> (<%= l(:label_f_hour_plural, issue.spent_hours)
%>)<% end %></li>

- Category set to Roadmap

I've added the following related issues:

- #1671 (nice but outdated patch which adds detailed timelog info on the roadmap page and which adds some new selectors in the roadmap grouping component)

- #2587 (feature request for something that was included in the previous mentioned patch #1671)
- #3245 (a patch which changes the Roadmap view to also show issue's estimated time and spent time, similar to Goyello's Roadmap Upgrade plugin (http://github.com/GOYELLO/Redmine\_roadmap\_upgrade))
