| DescriptionWhenever a new user registers, there's no system notification to project managers nor system administrator stating a new user needs to be accredited to projects.A possible solution is once the new user logs in, himself selects the public projects he wishes to be accredited with. Then, the respective project managers are notified (by email), that new users are waiting their to be set. |                       |                        |            |
