Description

The attached patch improves the user interface cleaner by updating border colors and box styling.

- Update the style of the .box, used across multiple screens, by changing the background color and border style to give it a lighter and cleaner impression
- Aligned the border styles of many elements with the updated .box style, improving contrast and color consistency
- Updated the sidebar background color to match the new background color of the .box

The color of the activity page headings was originally determined to match the sidebar. Therefore, how about also changing the color of the activity headings accordingly?

I think the headings should not have a border because it is too obvious and a heading with a border looks like a box.
