Description

The margin-top for #sidebar h3 was removed in r23218. Probably this change was made to prevent excessive spacing between the sidebar toggle button and the first h3 heading.

However, this removal introduced an unintended side effect: the lack of margin between the content blocks and the h3 headings has resulted in an awkward layout, as seen in the screenshot.

To address this issue, I believe it would be better to restore the margin-top, even if it means allowing a slightly larger gap below the sidebar toggle button.
