Description

"All Projects" should have "Issues", "Reports", "News", "Activity", and "Overview" -- where "Overview" is like the current page you get when you click "All Projects" but everything else basically removes the project filter and shows only the projects that the user is a member of.

This is critical for managers that are helping with multiple projects-- so they can see the important issues in ALL projects or the resolved issues in ALL projects, even if they weren't assigned back to them. It gives other users a good sense of what the overall state of all the projects are.

I think this is critical, and I also think I could help with it. Don't know what your process is for modifying and contributing.

This is implemented with r1778.

As of today (0.8.1 / trunk @ r2520) most of them are implemented:

- Issues: r684
- Reports: r410 (slightly different though)
    - If you mean the calendar and Gantt (which I doubt): r2088
- Activity: r1227

Regarding the "Overview": does the project list (../projects) suffice your need?

This would mean that only the request for cross-project news isn't implemented upto today...

Set -done to 80 to mark the progress somehow...

This issue now became a feature request only regarding a global news view. By further inspection this feature is at least already implemented within the current Redmine trunk.

Sum of all above: all feature requests mentioned in this issue are implemented [sic] this issue is getting closed.
