Description

This feature proposal suggests adding a sticky issue header that only appears when the subject of an issue is scrolled out of view.

This approach keeps the subject and ID visible without being intrusive during normal browsing, making it easier to keep track of the current issue, even on pages with a large number of comments or attachments. Additionally, it reduces the risk of mistakenly adding a comment to the wrong issue by always displaying the subject.

Patch is attached.

In responsive mode, the header appears below the project jump.

If the subject is too long to fit on one line, omit it.

Absolutely agree. This is a great way to prevent such mistakes.

I am setting the target version to 6.1.0.

Sorry for the repeated updates. I removed unnecessary style definition.
