Thanks for catching and fixing this issue.

I prefer to fix it by changing the legacy icons with the new SVG icons.

I also agree with replacing the old icons with the new SVG icons.

However, how about first fixing the issue in this issue, where the icon overlaps the file name, and then handling the replacement with SVG icons in the next issue?

In particular, I think that replacing the loading icon with an SVG icon might take some time for discussion and implementation, since we will need to consider applying it to other places where it is used as well.

After this issue is resolved, I would be happy to create an issue for replacing the old icons with SVG icons.

Sure, I've committed the fix and I will merge it soon to 6.0-stable branch.
