

Redmine - Defect #42818

Unnecessary margin below icons on the board-style projects page

Description

In the projects page (board), when using alert syntax or code blocks in the project descriptions, an unwanted margin appears below the alert icons or the copy button of the code blocks. This margin is originally intended for the my-project and bookmarked icons, so I'll explicitly apply styles only to those elements to resolve this.

Since wrapping the `sprite_icon` inside a `` tag is already implemented in the projects page (list), I think it's a good idea to do the same here for consistency.

Adjust margin around icons in project list descriptions (#42818).

Patch by Mizuki ISHIKAWA (user:ishikawa999) and Katsuya HIDAHA (user:hidakatsuya).

I tested with the built-in themes and several third-party themes, and confirmed that the copy button is displayed as expected. I also think that this approach is appropriate as it improves consistency with the list view implementation.

However, I noticed one issue: after applying this patch, the left margin styling for the project icon and bookmark icon in the project board view is no longer applied.

Here is the fix for this issue.

The patch in comment #note-2 had several points that could be improved. Here is the improved version of the patch.

The above patch includes the following improvements from the patch in #note-2:

- The selectors for `.icon-bookmarked-project` and `.my-project` have been made more specific, making the intention clear and improving code readability.
- Since the project board view and list view have different styles, the selectors are separated to clarify the context, improving readability and maintainability.
