| DescriptionWhen viewing an issue it will be good every comment to include logged spent time if there was logged any time.This way managers watching the issue comment can see how long have took to do some changes. Also it will be good, because managers will receive the time by email together with issue comment. So it will not be necessary to go to redmine and to check specifically how long took to do some job. |               |                        |            |
