Description Hi, Currently in redmine I grant a role only with the option to globally view tickets and globally edit tickets or not at all. I think it is very important to add a feature that allows users that have a certain role to view and edit only their tickets.  Thanks, Alexander

- It would be very useful feature for us too. What do developers think? Is it feasible to implement it given the current architecture of redmine?

- Private issues?

- Yeah, quite similar although this one is narrower. I must say, it was not an easy job to follow all that lengthy discussion.
- If there is a consensus #337 would be implemented in redmine-1.1, I guess this feature is a duplicate and should be closed.

I close this issue.

- Is duplicate of Feature #7412: Add an issue visibility level to each role added

I don't think this is OP wanted.
Visibility only control the 'view' permission of issues, but system still lacks another function -- edit permission. Users should edit only their raised tickets, I mean issue properties.
