Description
Now I see a lot of projects in one page, but I need only mine projects to find it faster. In the right bottom corner of page there is a star with note `My projects` - it can be moved to right top corner and made clickable (or link) that enables filter to show only mine projects or all projects. Or it can be done in other way. By default page can show all projects to disable confusion of newcomers when they want create new task for some project.

I like the idea of a quick filter like that. Do you think we should also provide the ability to set this filter in common filters (on issues/gantt/calendar pages) ?

This filter must select, for example, only my projects (in which teams I exists). It's like a ProjectFiltering plugin and Favourite Projects plugin. You can provide a tab `Favourite projects` that contains only projects you selected - if you have 100 projects or more it's very difficult to find some project. But if you had found those projects you can add them to favourites tab (on projects view page) via context menu or with `add to favourites` link near each project to access them faster the next time.

I don't know if this is important. After I selected a project on the projects' page I have no need in this filter any more. Though, in issue properties I can select another project and will be good to select my project, not foreign (not tested it).

Now I don't know.

The best decision at the moment is simply to show My Projects in Dashboard and ability to filter My Projects in the projects' page.

I think it has been partially fixed in some recent version (<=2.3.1 and >= 2.2.0).

This is a really useful feature that we would like. We have around 250 projects and a feature to filter the projects with various custom fields(just like issues) will be really useful. We have tried "favourite project" plugin but it has some limitations. I am surprised there isn't much demand for this feature. May be I am missing something or doing something wrong? Thanks

The patches from #29482 cover all the requests from this ticket. Using the "Project" filter, you can select specific projects or "my projects" that will return all the projects where the current user is a member.

I think that is safe to close this ticket in favour of #29482.
