Description

If we can add some user-defined attributes to the projects, and then classified according to properties display all the projects, it will be great.

You can do it by making use of the query system for projects that has been implemented in Redmine 4.1 (#29482) and project custom fields.

The screenshot shows the Redmine interface with the 'Projects' tab selected. The top navigation bar includes 'Home', 'My page', 'Projects', 'Administration', and 'Help'. The user is logged in as 'admin'. The search bar is empty, and the 'Jump to a project...' dropdown is also empty. The 'Projects' section has a 'Filters' section with a checked 'Status' filter set to 'is active'. Below the filters, the 'Options' section shows 'Display results as' set to 'List'. The 'Columns' section has 'Available Columns' (Status, Homepage, Subproject of, Public, Created, Development status) and 'Selected Columns' (Name, Identifier, Description). The 'Group results by' dropdown is highlighted with a pink circle and set to 'Development status'. The 'Apply', 'Clear', and 'Save' buttons are visible. The table below shows a list of projects with columns for Name, Identifier, and Description.
