Description

The info that I really want on my my page is a list of tickets assigned to me and a list of projects I'm in.

This patch adds a block for the list of projects... nice and simple.

It is based on existing code, so it should work OK :)

i vote +1 for that feature

#2 - 2008-06-05 02:25 - Bill Marquette

This is also something I just wrote for my own install within two hours of installation. The biggest difference between the attached patch and what I did, was that I used the find code right out of the projects controller to find the list of projects (Project.find :all, :conditions => Project.visible_by(User.current), :include => :parent)

#3 - 2009-03-09 10:43 - Romain GEORGES

update for the new version (resolve the bug with "parent")
The code is like in account/show

<h3><%=l(:label_projects_i_am_in)%></h3>

<% user = User.active.current memberships = user.memberships.select do |membership|
membership.project.is_public? || (User.current.member_of?(membership.project))
end
>
< unless memberships.empty? >
<h3><=l(:label_project_plural)%></h3>

<% for membership in memberships >
<= link_to(h(membership.project.name), :controller => 'projects', :action => 'show', :id => membership.project) >
(<=h membership.role.name >, <= format_date(membership.created_on) >)
< end >

< end %>

<%= link_to l(:label_project_all), :controller => 'projects', :action => 'index' %>
