Description With the great new subtasks in core, it would be great to be able to group an issue list by parent task. Right now it almost seems like a bug that subtasks are indented in the listing only if there is a parent task above it but regardless of if it is that tasks parent. I think there is also room for a toggle or filter option that disables the indentation. Perhaps this would be tied to this grouping option, but it doesn't have to be.
